Net Zero Nuclear Summit
kicks off at COP28 in Dubai

DUBAI / WAM

The Net Zero Nuclear Summit kicked off on Thursday in Dubai, as part of the 28th UN Climate Change Conference (COP28). The event is being held on December 7-8 and is hosted by leaders of the Net Zero Nuclear initiative, which calls for unprecedented collaboration between government and industry to at least triple global nuclear capacity to help achieve carbon neutrality by 2050.

The Emirates Nuclear Energy Corporation (Enec) played a leading role in bringing focus and attention to the global race to generate clean electrons and molecules during the opening day of the summit.

The Emirates Nuclear Energy Corporation (Enec) played a leading role in bringing focus and attention to the global race to generate clean electrons and molecules during the opening day of the summit

The UAE has added more clean electricity per capita over the past five years than any other nation. 75 percent of this is from nuclear energy, making it the perfect location to host the inaugural Net Zero Nuclear Summit.

Net Zero Nuclear was launched by Enec and the World Nuclear Association (WNA) in September this year. The Net Zero Nuclear initiative has already achieved success following the announcement that 22 countries have endorsed the tripling of nuclear energy capacity by 2050. The countries agreed that increased investments in nuclear energy are critical for cutting carbon emissions and accelerating the decarbonisation of heavy industries.

The Net Zero Nuclear Summit's main theme focused on the soaring need for clean electrons and molecules to fuel economies and underpin vital processes. The summit highlighted that this transformation needs to be done in an eco-conscious way to help steer the globe to a Net Zero horizon. Suhail bin Mohammed Al Mazrouei, Minister of Energy

“The development of the Barakah Plant has been pivotal to our nation's clean energy transition, with the Plant today being the largest single source of clean electricity. The abundant, baseload, carbon-free electricity, combined with the knowledge, expertise and technology gained from developing Barakah, are today driving innovation in clean molecules and the development of Small Modular Reactors

Mohamed Al Hammadi,
Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Enec

and Infrastructure, underscored the transformational impact of nuclear energy in the UAE, accentuating the fact that The Barakah Nuclear Energy Plant is spearheading decarbonisation of the UAE's energy sector whilst sustainably powering the UAE.

In a statement during the summit, Mohamed Al Hammadi, Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Enec, said, “The development of the Barakah Plant has been pivotal to our nation's clean energy transition, with the Plant today being the largest single source of clean electricity. The abundant, baseload, carbon-free electricity, combined with the knowledge, expertise and technology gained from developing Barakah, are today driving innovation in clean molecules and the development of Small Modular Reactors.”

COP28 Changemakers Majlis spotlights urban design for net-zero cities

DUBAI / WAM

Ministry of Climate Change and Environment (MoCCA) hosted the twelfth COP28 UAE Changemakers Majlis in the Actionist Hub in the Green Zone at COP28 on Thursday. Bringing together speakers from diverse backgrounds such as architecture, design, planning, policy, energy, academia and research sectors, the Majlis discussed some of the key characteristics that would define sustainable cities of the future.

Exploring the fundamental factors necessary to build more resilient cities, the Majlis opened the floor for discussions on how urban design, food and water infrastructure would impact cities and urban planning in line with the UAE's net-zero ambition. The discussion also focused on the importance of the integration of renewable energy into sustainable urban infrastructure and how clean energy sources could be efficiently distributed across power grids.

Waheeb Saeed Alkamali, Head of Municipal Affairs Coordination at MoCCA, introduced the four key themes of the discussion, which are Sustainable architecture, Transportation, Biodiversity preservation, Strategy and policy to advance climate-resilient city design in coming decades.

As moderator of the discussion, Khulood Al Atiyat, Senior Strategist at Salama Bint Hamdan Al Nahyan Foundation, started by sharing some of the figures such as how 4.4 billion city dwellers around the world are responsible for more than 70 percent of global CO2 emissions. Then she asked the Majlis to share their thoughts on some of the innovative architecture and sustainable designs.
