Green parks significantly reduce urban temperatures in Abu Dhabi: Study

The research, part of "AI-enabled Urban Heat Island Detection and Mitigation" project, aims to identify the factors contributing to urban heat islands

ABU DHABI/WAM

A groundbreaking study by Mohamed bin Zayed University of Artificial Intelligence (MBZUAI) in Abu Dhabi and the US technology giant IBM has found that green parks in Abu Dhabi play a crucial role in reducing urban temperatures, with some areas experiencing a cooling effect of up to 2.2°C.

Dr Salman Khan, Associate Professor of Computer Vision at MBZUAI, said in an interview with the Emirates News Agency (WAM) that the study used AI-enabled technology to analyse decades of satellite data and found that vegetation and water bodies have a significant impact on reducing urban heat island effects.

An urban heat island occurs when a city experiences much warmer temperatures than nearby rural areas. This happens because densely developed urban areas absorb and radiate heat, increasing local surface and air temperatures and exacerbating global warming.

The study, part of the "AIenabled Urban Heat Island Detection and Mitigation" project, aims to identify the factors contributing to urban heat islands and develop strategies to mitigate them.

Dr Khan highlighted the significant cooling effects of two parks in particular. Masdar Park in Masdar city on the outskirts of Abu Dhabi city has reduced temperatures by 2.2°C in that area. Umm Al Emarat Park in Abu Dhabi City has resulted in a 1°C cooling effect in the centre of Abu Dhabi island.

UAE showed high effectiveness in dealing with unprecedented weather conditions: MoEI

DUBAI / WAM

Hassan Al Mansoori, Undersecretary for Infrastructure and Transport Affairs at the Ministry of Energy and Infrastructure (MoEI), highlighted that the UAE has proved highly effective in dealing with the consequences of the extreme weather conditions.

He further noted that the proactive and swift response of various concerned entities has contributed to protecting people's lives and properties and expediting recovery time, as service facilities, such as roads, bridges, and dams, went back to operation in record time.

Al Mansoori added that following President His Highness Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan's order to study the condition of infrastructure throughout the country to better understand the damages and improve future responses, MoEI joined forces with its partners to form an on-ground force that immediately started to review and assess the damages caused by the intense rainfall.

"The workforce will prepare a complete study on the need to expand dams and waterways so they are ready for and can contain future extreme weather events. Moreover, it will prepare an integrated operational plan to repair the damage caused to federal roads and take proactive measures to ensure the continuity of the roads' rainwater drainage network. In addition, MoEI is about to follow a proactive plan to maintain water pump stations on federal roads to ensure their preparedness,"he continued.

The Ministry, he said, has put in place integrated plans and schemes for immediate and swift response to emergencies to ensure the safety of people and protect properties and infrastructure.

"To ensure the infrastructure's preparedness, the Ministry held multiple meetings that set immediate response plans and priorities. Seven field teams were formed in collaboration with partners from the private sector to swiftly respond to any emergency on federal roads and dams. We also opened dam gates to empty the water, reduce pressure, and make dams ready to accommodate more rainwater," he explained.
