UAE, New Zealand to launch Cempa talks to boost trade ties

The proposed partnership agreement reflects growing bilateral relations, with non-oil trade between the nations reaching $764.5 million in 2023

ABU DHABI / WAM

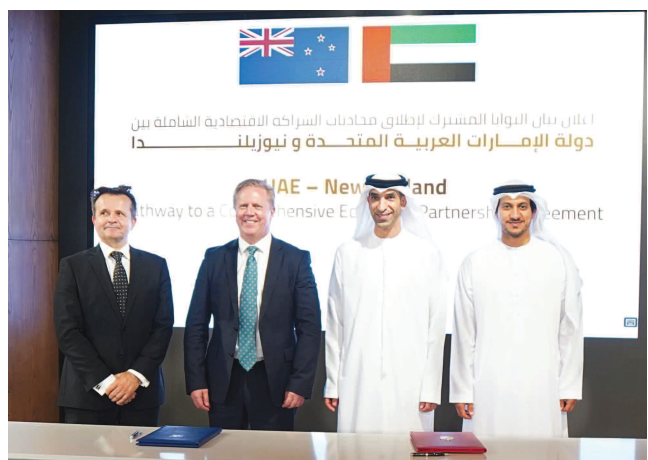

The United Arab Emirates and New Zealand have agreed to start negotiations for a Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA), which will boost trade and investment ties between the two nations.

A joint declaration of intent confirming the agreement was signed by Dr Thani bin Ahmed Al Zeyoudi, UAE Minister of State for Foreign Trade, and Todd McClay, New Zealand's Minister for Trade.

The proposed Cempa reflects growing bilateral relations, with non-oil trade between the UAE and New Zealand reaching $764.5 million in 2023, an increase of more than 15 percent over the pre-Covid year of 2019.

The agreement will seek to boost those numbers through the removal or reduction of tariffs and trade barriers, the improvement of market access, and the establishment of investment pathways that will open up new opportunities in key sectors such as agriculture, renewable energy, logistics, education, professional services and healthcare.

Dr Al Zeyoudi stated, "New Zealand has become a valued trade partner for the UAE, one that shares our conviction that open, rules-based trade is an essential driver of sustainable economic growth. as public consultation, which demonstrated the importance of pursuing a high-quality agreement to boost our economy and unlock greater export opportunities.”

He added that an agreement with the UAE will provide new opportunities to New Zealand exporters who "are integral to revitalising our economy, which is why the Government has set the ambitious target of doubling exports by value within 10 years. New oppor-

“The UAE is a key export destination and hub in the Gulf region, and there are significant opportunities to enhance cooperation across a range of areas, including agriculture and sustainable energy,” he said.

Foreign trade remains the cornerstone of the UAE's economic agenda. In 2023, the UAE's non-oil trade in goods reached an all-time high of $701 billion, a 12.6 percent increase on 2022 — and 34.7 percent more than 2021.

ADIBF 2024 introduces digital payment system for book sales

The system positions Abu Dhabi International Book Fair as the first cashless book fair

ABU DHABI/WAM

In line with the UAE's ambitious vision for digital transformation and its commitment to utilising the latest software, technologies, and artificial intelligence, organisers of the 33rd Abu Dhabi International Book Fair (ADIBF 2024) have introduced a digital payment system for visitors to use at the event.

The system is the first of its kind in the Arab world and positions the ADIBF, as the first cashless book fair. It operates using a device designed and programmed specifically for the Fair and connected to various banks' payment networks. The system allows users to pay with their cards, Apple Pay accounts, or other similar methods, through devices available in the exhibition halls.

Visitors carrying only cash can deposit the amount into the device and receive a card loaded with the deposited amount, allowing them to pay for books from any available device in the Fair. If the visitor does not spend all the balance loaded on the card, they can reclaim the remaining amount in cash from the same device used to issue the card.
