Managed by Dorsch Global, the project is deployed of sustainable landscaping practices to address the unique environmental challenges of the region. This initiative reflects a practical approach to balancing operational requirements with ecological responsibility, showcasing how modern airports can incorporate innovative solutions into their development.

Spanning 480,000 square meters of meticulously crafted green spaces, the project redefines sustainable landscaping in the region and solidifies Abu Dhabi's reputation as a hub for innovation and environmental stewardship.

- Abu Dhabi New Airport Landscaping Project stands out as a landmark initiative, setting a benchmark for sustainable practices in large-scale infrastructure development
- Among its key achievements is a 50% reduction in water usage, made possible by incorporating volcanic soil products sourced from Hungary, which retain moisture more efficiently

Its singular vision was to create an iconic and welcoming environment while adhering to the highest standards of sustainability. To achieve this, the project focuses on water conservation by utilizing native and local plants, which significantly reduce water dependency and enhance biodiversity. Solar power systems were also integrated to minimize energy consumption, further emphasizing the project's commitment to sustainability.

"This project is more than just a development — it's a symbol of our commitment to innovation and sustainability," said Khaled Abbas, Regional Director of Landscape and Client Relationship at Dorsch Abu Dhabi. "By using local resources and innovative technology, we've set a new standard for green infrastructure in the Middle East.

Among its key achievements is a 50% reduction in water usage, made possible by incorporating volcanic soil products sourced from Hungary, which retain moisture more efficiently. Native and local plant species were prioritized to ensure compatibility with the desert environment, significantly reducing water requirements compared to imported species.

The project also avoided tapping into groundwater aquifers, preserving these vital resources for future generations. By integrating features such as 18-meter-high sand dunes that balance aesthetic appeal with functional design, the project demonstrates how sustainability and architectural harmony can co-exist.

EPA strengthens UAE's presence at London Book Fair

The Emirates Publishers Association (EPA) delegation features a distinguished group of seven Emirati publishers at the London Book Fair — WAM

SHARJAH / WAM

The Emirates Publishers Association (EPA) continues to broaden its global presence with a prominent participation at the London Book Fair, one of the world's leading platforms for rights negotiation, content sales, and distribution across various formats.

This year, the EPA delegation features a distinguished group of seven Emirati publishers, including two Sharjah Publishing Sustainability Fund (Onshur) graduates.

This participation aligns with the EPA's broader efforts to empower Emirati publishers and position the UAE as a thriving regional and global hub for the book and publishing industry. The fair offers a unique opportunity for Emirati publishers to forge new partnerships with international counterparts, exchange rights, secure translation agreements, and explore the latest trends shaping global publishing.

Among the participating publishers is Kalimat Group, which began its publishing journey in 2007, focusing on children's literature. Since then, Kalimat has expanded its offerings to include five specialised imprints covering various age groups and literary genres.
