Masdar, ScottishPower set UK record for biggest blade install at East Anglia THREE offshore windfarm

LONDON / WAM

Masdar's East Anglia THREE offshore windfarm and ScottishPower have set a UK offshore wind record with the installation of its first turbine — the first in the UK to feature 115 metre blades, each one longer than a Premier League football pitch. All 285 of the record-breaking blades for the project's 95 turbines are being manufactured in the UK at Siemens Gamesa's factory in Hull. Standing around 262 metres tall — higher than the observation deck at the Shard — the 14MW Siemens Gamesa turbines have a rotor diameter

All 285 of the record-breaking blades for the project's 95 turbines are being manufactured in the UK at Siemens Gamesa's factory in Hull of 236 metres. A single revolution of just one turbine will produce enough electricity to power a UK home for more than four days, charge around 1,700 mobile phones, or brew nearly a thousand cups of tea. Charlie Jordan, ScottishPower Renewables CEO, said, "This is a defining moment — and a UK industry first — for ScottishPower, Iberdrola and Masdar as we celebrate and accelerate the deployment of homegrown renewable energy at scale. East Anglia THREE will be the biggest and most powerful offshore windfarm in our portfolio. That means billions of pounds invested in UK and global supply chains; thousands of jobs supported during construction; more than a hundred long-term roles created in the East of England; and greater energy security, with more clean power coming on to the grid than ever before." He added, "This achievement is a testament to successful collaboration with our strategic investment partner, Masdar, and the dedication and excellence of our own teams and supply chain partners. East Anglia THREE will play a crucial role in the UK's clean energy future, and it's fantastic to see our vision come to life."

Tehran's perceptions of controlling Arabian Gulf, Strait of Hormuz legally invalid, completely rejected: Arab League

CAIRO / WAM

The League of Arab States affirmed that Arab countries have not been and will not be held hostage by Iran to settle scores. Ahmed Aboul Gheit, Secretary-General of the League of Arab States, stressed that Tehran's perceptions of controlling the Arabian Gulf and the Strait of Hormuz are legally invalid, lack any justification or basis, and are completely rejected. This came in his speech during the extraordinary ministerial-level meeting of the Arab League Council, held via videoconference, regarding the unlawful Iranian attacks against Arab states and Iran's obligations under international law. The session was chaired by Dr. Abdullatif bin Rashid Al Zayani, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Bahrain, as the current chair of the Council at the ministerial level. Aboul Gheit called on the international community to hold the aggressor fully accountable for its illegal, unjustified, and unacceptable attacks on a number of Arab countries.

EGA to acquire majority stake in Italian recycling firm Eco Green

The acquisition marks the latest milestone in EGA's global expansion and accelerates the company's growth in aluminium recycling across Europe

ABU DHABI / WAM

Emirates Global Aluminium (EGA), the largest industrial company in the UAE outside oil and gas and the world's biggest producer of 'premium aluminium', today announced its intention to acquire an 80 percent stake in Italian aluminium recycling company Eco Green.

The acquisition, which remains subject to regulatory approvals, marks the latest milestone in EGA's global expansion and accelerates the company's growth in aluminium recycling across Europe.

Eco Green specialises in aluminium scrap collection, sorting and casting, and dross processing, distributing a total of more than 70,000 tonnes per year.

The company's plant in Villafranca di Verona in northeast Italy collects, sorts and distributes approximately 23,000 tonnes of aluminium scrap annually. A portion of the sorted scrap feeds Eco Green's nearby facility in Nogara di Verona, which casts more than 20,000 tonnes of secondary sows per year and also processes dross.

Eco Green is advancing an expansion plan in the Nogara di Verona facility that will add 15,000 tonnes per year of recycled aluminium capacity. The project is expected to be completed early in the second half of 2026.

EGA typically exports over 600,000 tonnes of primary aluminium annually from the UAE to Europe each year, supplying key industries including automotive and construction

Chief Executive Officer of Emirates Global Aluminium, said, "At EGA, we are making rapid progress in building a global aluminium recycling business alongside expanding our primary aluminium production. Post closing, Eco Green will bring EGA reach and expertise in the European aluminium scrap market, making this a significant step forward in supplying the recycling operations we are building across the continent to contribute to Europe's green future. Eco Green will also add recycled aluminium production in northeast Italy, which we can further develop as part of EGA."

Luca Scappini, Chief Executive Officer of Eco Green, said, "Becoming part of the world's largest producer of 'premium aluminium' will unlock Eco Green's growth potential, enabling us to further enhance our plants and expand our scrap supply and customer networks across Europe."

'NYU Abu Dhabi' completes research study on developing sustainable agricultural crops

ABU DHABI / WAM

Researchers at NYU Abu Dhabi, in collaboration with international partners, have uncovered new insights into how apples became the fruits we know today, showing that their evolution has been shaped by continuous exchange with wild apple trees.

In a study published in Current Biology, the research team compared cultivated apples with their wild relatives from Europe and Asia. Their findings revealed that apples are not the product of a simple domestication process. Instead, they have evolved through ongoing interactions with wild species, which have left a lasting imprint on their DNA.

The study showed that as apples spread across regions, they repeatedly exchanged traits with wild trees.

These interactions played a key role in shaping key characteristics such as flavour, disease resistance, and adaptability to different environments.
